STRICKEN JUROR DIES

Illness Due to Exposure After Night Session of Trial Fatal to Heartt.

Laigi Mira, an automobile worker the croney of Montemagno, assassin of Michael Galmari, game testimony for the State to-day in the trial of Michael A. Rofrano, charged with insigating the murder.

Mira, like Montemagno, testified through an interpreter, though he often showed he understood questions in English by answering before they were translated to him. Mira left this city after the murder and was found in York, Pa., by Detective di Martini and brought back as a witness.

Mira bore out Montemagno's story of the activities of Rofrano in directing the "removal" of Mike Galmart, political tumult of the Second Asthe veteran Tammany leader.

Woman Pays Penalty of High Living; Simple Life Means Better Health And Fewer Operations, Asserts Doctor

It's the High Living of the Men for Which Wives and Mothers Suffer, Says Dr. Mary Halton-Too Much Surgery for Rich Women, Not Enough for the Poor.

By Nixola Greeley-Smith.

At clinics held in many hospitals of Philadelphia yesterday, which were attended by hundreds of delegates to the Clinical Congress of North America, in session in that city, many arguments were advanced to prove that the simple life means the simple doctor's bill. Several surgeons asserted that high living is responsible for more operations than under-nourishment and that the rich are more liable to cancer of the stomach

Dr. M. E. Rehfuss demonstrated the theory held by many physicians that cancer may result from too much protein, the chief element in meat, eggs and other rich foods. Another specialist said that were it not for the ravages of tuberculosis the poor would be much healthier than the well-to do. When I took these conclusions to the office of Dr.
